

Fun Activities to Try at Home

Bath time is fun time!

Bath time is a great time to play. If you have some bath toys, ask your child what sound the object makes, or what color it is. Encourage them to imitate sounds or movements like “What animal says quack? Can you do it too? Let’s splash like a duck.” They will be having fun and practicing phonological awareness skills at the same time.

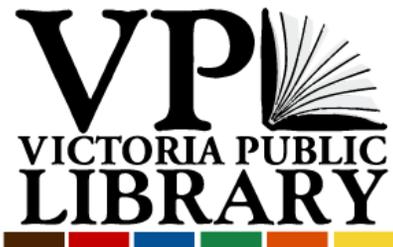

Dance Party!

Throw a family dance party with kids’ music that includes instructional songs, like the “Hokey Pokey” and “Shake Your Sillies Out.” This helps build listening and comprehension skills.

One more time?

If your child has a favorite story, try reading it again. Repetitious reading reinforces memory skills, sequencing skills and increases vocabulary. Every reading can lead to new discoveries.

WRITE

Occasionally use your pointer finger to scan words when you read. This will help your child to associate print with the spoken word.
